Great Mosque at Delhi the Jamsa Masjid (or Great Mosque) was erected in 1648-50 by Shah Jahan Built upon an elevation, it commands a magnificent view of the city and is approached by a fine flight of stone steps.
At the front corners are two tall minarets and from the roof rise three white marble domes. White marble adorns the exterior of the mosque, paving the floor and living roof and walls
